

Out & About with Lori Sunflower

What would you most like to see in 2022?

James Courtney
I would like to see less of the Corona craziness. And I would like to see prices go down in food and gas.

Vesper Gers
In 2022 I would like to see humanity rise up in peace, in purpose, in solidarity... to resist the power grab.
To resist the corporate capture of our lives & of our minds.
To resist this slippery slide toward totalitarian technocracy in its tracks, remove that crushing boot from our strong humble backs.
And stand in our innate right to life, to liberty, to pursue health & happiness.

Mary Gaetjens
Compassion and a way for people to connect to nature so that they can eliminate fear from their diets.

Hester Triplett
I would like to see people talk with each other more. Listen more to friends and neighbors, listen less to mainstream media. Go out and enjoy a meal together. Live, laugh, and love more in 2022.

Kyle Terry
I'd like to see a lot less chaos and suffering in the world. The last two years have been devastating for everyone. I'd hope for a calm year of healing and restoration.

Maureen (aka Mo) VanWalleghan
I would like to see creative endeavor to solve all the different things going on for our communities. Whether it's land use issues, issues in town, issues in the Baca, we have such amazing creativity and brain power here that we can solve pretty much everything that's going on in new and incredibly unique ways and be a model for the bigger community beyond ourselves.

Jeannette Gardea
The thing I would like to see most for 2022 is people smiles, hearing their laughter. People communing with each other, happy and fear free and healthy and joyful and creating new things.

Dusty Ryan
I would like to see politics take a backseat and humanity and kindness take over a little more in the balance. Less politics, more humanity.

Keating Simons
Covid goes bye-bye.

Brent Beckman
I would most like to see us stop living in fear. I would love for us to wake up and be a happy, beautiful community that helps each other and stops being afraid of each other. That's what I would love most for 2022.

HAPPY NEW YEAR
