

Out & About with Lori Sunflower

What do you like about the Crestone Eagle & how could it improve?

Dale Smith

I love what the new crew's done by making it accessible and that it's well-organized. So, I still love that. And I love what Matt brought with color and photography. Mostly, I like the way that it's been. I don't want it to be a cut down to anybody from the past. I love what everyone brought from before. I just like the combination of personalities and everybody's creative ideas. That's pretty much it. Regarding suggestions for improvement, I guess we've got to keep it funded. I'm worried about that, of course. I don't know how you go about doing that to make it better. I don't want it to have any lapse again with it stopping. I didn't even know that was going to happen.

What I like about the Eagle is that it is journalism in terrestrial form. Print has all but disappeared but we have/had a newspaper with journalists, photographers and editing. What I don't like is that we may lose these forms of communication. This is a teachable moment for our youth.

The local news in the Crestone Eagle is highly valuable to the community. It is wonderful to celebrate events and holidays and gives us a way to remember them with wonderful pictures and articles. I appreciate that it helps people with finding jobs, listings and services as well as a great place to advertise for local businesses.

As far as how it can improve, there's not much that I don't like about it! Sometimes there are pages that I wish were in color.

What I like:

I dig the commUNITY aspect of the Crestone Eagle! Front page brings you in with a stellar shot of our wildlife, a festival, or some joy being shown of all ages. The texture and scent of the paper is also pure nostalgia. How to improve:

Revert back to a classic NEWSpaper... Having certain topics that town board, POA, and county concerns are printed to the public.

HAPPY HOLIDAYS

I love The Crestone Eagle. The paper has held our community together for decades. The news about our community is invaluable, and the level of unbiased reporting is high, unlike social media, which is subject to personal opinion. And I like to read it at my convenience, before it disappears into the electronic ether. If I could change one thing it would be to add back in the Saguache County News. There is really nowhere else to find out what our commissioners and county officials are doing.

I love the Eagle. I think local news is super important. I look forward to the Eagle coming out every month. I buy it. I'd be very happy to financially support the Eagle. I think we have to have the voices of people in the community. I love seeing what everybody thinks. I love Lori's column. It's lots of fun. I also really enjoy finding out what's happening - the events, the schedules, the things for the events in town. It's really important. But also the investigative reporting is really important. I look forward to the Eagle being a continued important part of our community.
